

ABSTRACT

A dummy client accesses each channel of a chat system. When a message is transmitted from a client to a channel, the dummy client checks the content of the message. If the 5 message satisfies a predetermined sentence condition, the dummy client executes a process corresponding to the sentence condition and to the content of each sentence segment included in the message.